*Birmingham-Southern College
Birmingham, Alabama*

DEDICATION:

The Reverend

Donald

Shockley

It's his silence that you first like about him . . . There are so few people who listen. Then you feel the warmth of his listening . . . a warmth that says We are people; let us speak to one another as people—I hear you . . . I will always be here to hear you. In the often darkened maze of campus life, he is the understanding that eases the terror of ceaseless introspection.

He understands the relativity of the thing—of religion, that is. He talks about God without mentioning him; it's as if he knew that to be a Go-God Man would be to cut the lines of communication to those who are uncertain. A recognition of the groping . . . he sees the trembling mind that must cope with war, riots, sexual revolution, academic competition, . . . but he does not fear the vulnerability of caring.

We dedicate the 1968 Southern Accent to a man of genuine individuality, a man who lives the philosophy of caring which he tries to share—

Donald Shockley

THE "WHOLE" PERSON IN

THE "WHOLE" COLLEGE

'SOUTHERN SOCIETY: Union of Mind and Heart

At BSC, dating is an extension of seriousness: less than passion in the parking lot by the tennis courts, it is more often a study date in the darkened recesses of the library or a period of contemplation behind Yielding Chapel.

Apollos and Venuses drink of that potent mead—the BSC Social Mixer (2 parts-Southern Conformity, 2 Greek olives, 3 genteel mint sprigs, little water)—and promptly love’s labor is lost in that grand illusion, promulgated by the P. R. department: that social life at a small southern school is a many-splendored thing. Thus, publicity brochures present a traditional view of social relations at Birmingham-Southern College: hospitality, mint juleps (sans alcohol), et al.

But the College is not a social mecca, at least not in the conventional sense. The caliber of students reflects serious pursuits and an attraction to the school primarily for its academic excellence. Most Autumn Visitors come to recognize the constant reminder of broken P. R. image in the term “suit-case college”—for rumor has it that many freshmen pick up a one-way ticket to Auburn or Alabama, “where the action is.”

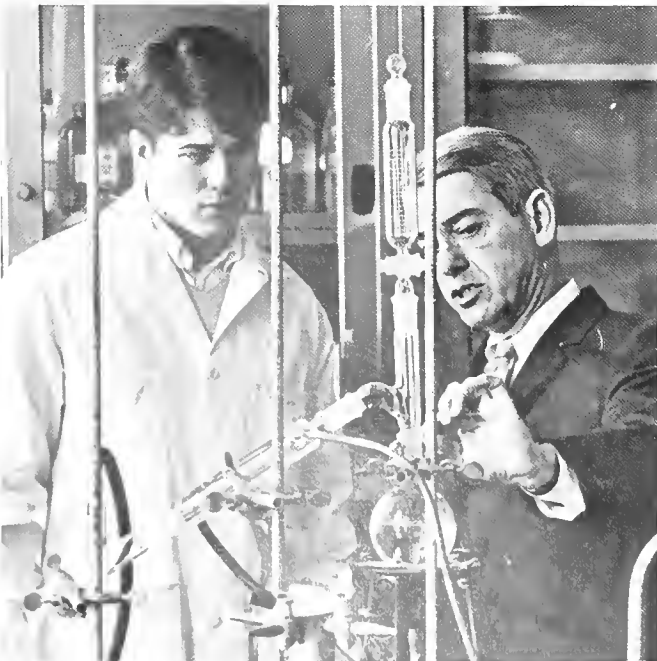

It’s very easy, though, to write off ‘Southern as the Date-less Capital of Alabama, when in reality it is so much more. Lettermen performing for the Accent pageant, bridge in snackbar or dorm, chess clubs, pool in the rec room, Cinema 298, mailbox conversation, weekend SGA movies—all disprove the common “tango theory” of social life on campus: that it requires two of opposite kind to have fun.

Nonetheless, the College, of course, provides a purely academic approach to social development: rhythms class, Cinema 10, etc. The union of mind and heart is liberal arts education’s contribution to social life; and it is a relatively easy thing to achieve, especially with the number of basketball, tennis, and baseball scholarship recipients coming to ‘Southern.

Intellectuality is of a special brand on the Hilltop. Far from being GPA or College Theatre, it's more like studying in the cafeteria during break or cutting class to talk with Charles Weltner. Education simply can't get away from the personal touch—as long as professors spend more time in the snack bar than in the classroom or the President sits down at the break with 50 students to discuss the ever mercurial state of the college.

Perhaps some of that prideful glow over our intellectuality has dimmed since Dr. Abernethy learned that Quest and the Honor Code are mutually exclusive.

THE EDUCATIONAL

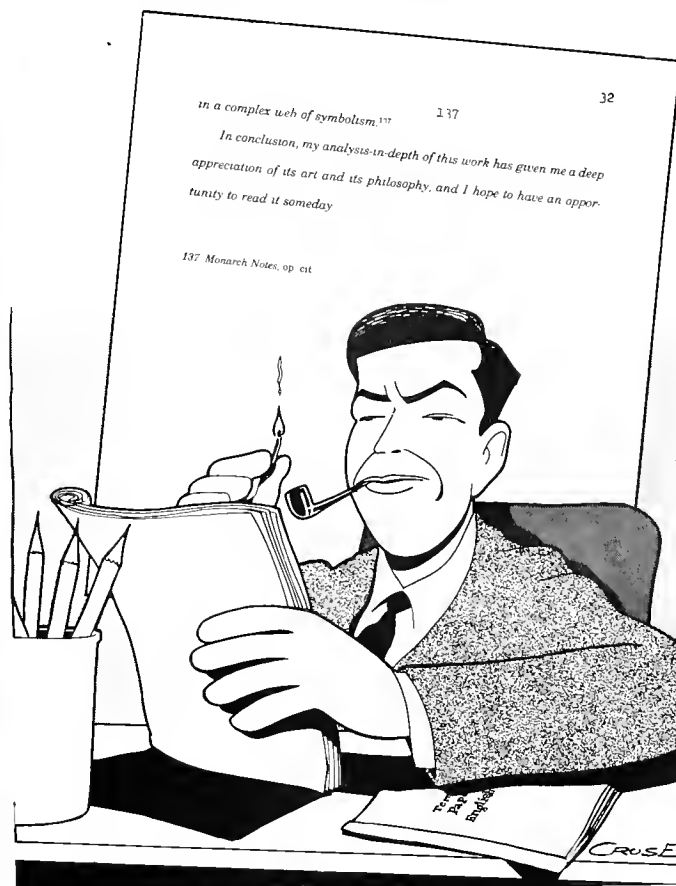

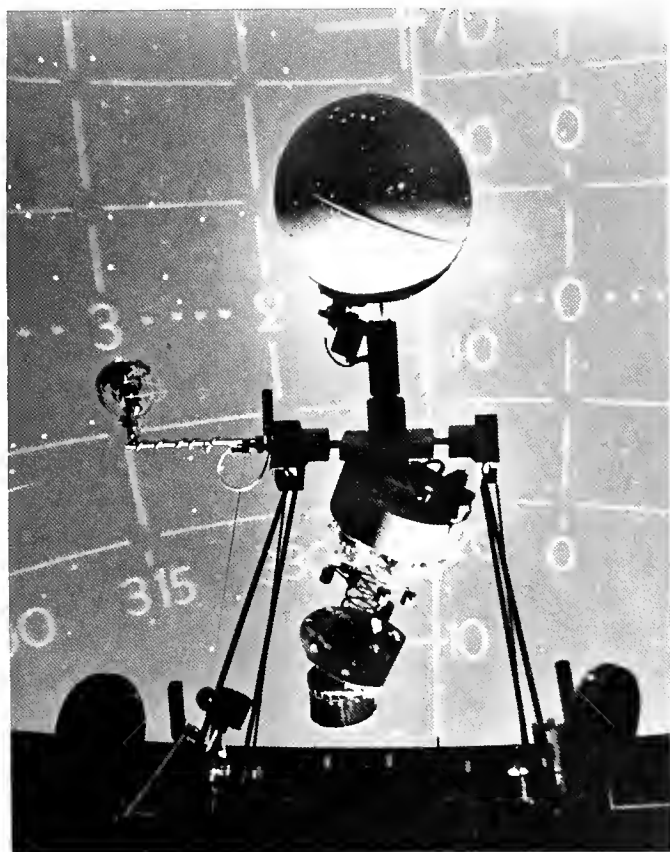

The College offers so much more than the multi-level, multiplex, multi-dollar university: it requires some rational analysis, a little sublimated Bonhoffer, and a lot of individuality to produce thinking, Birmingham-Southern style. While old curriculum mildews over, new curriculum turns out factory-fresh. The College and its students recognize the need for change (an admirable and surprising quality in a small southern school), for minds wander to Granny for lack of a complete challenge. Yet, "the intolerance of mediocrity" is for real—and like now, man. "Pursuit of academic excellence", the Man says—each in his own way; for intellectualism at 'Southern is as much an individual thing as an avocado toothbrush or a pack of Camels.

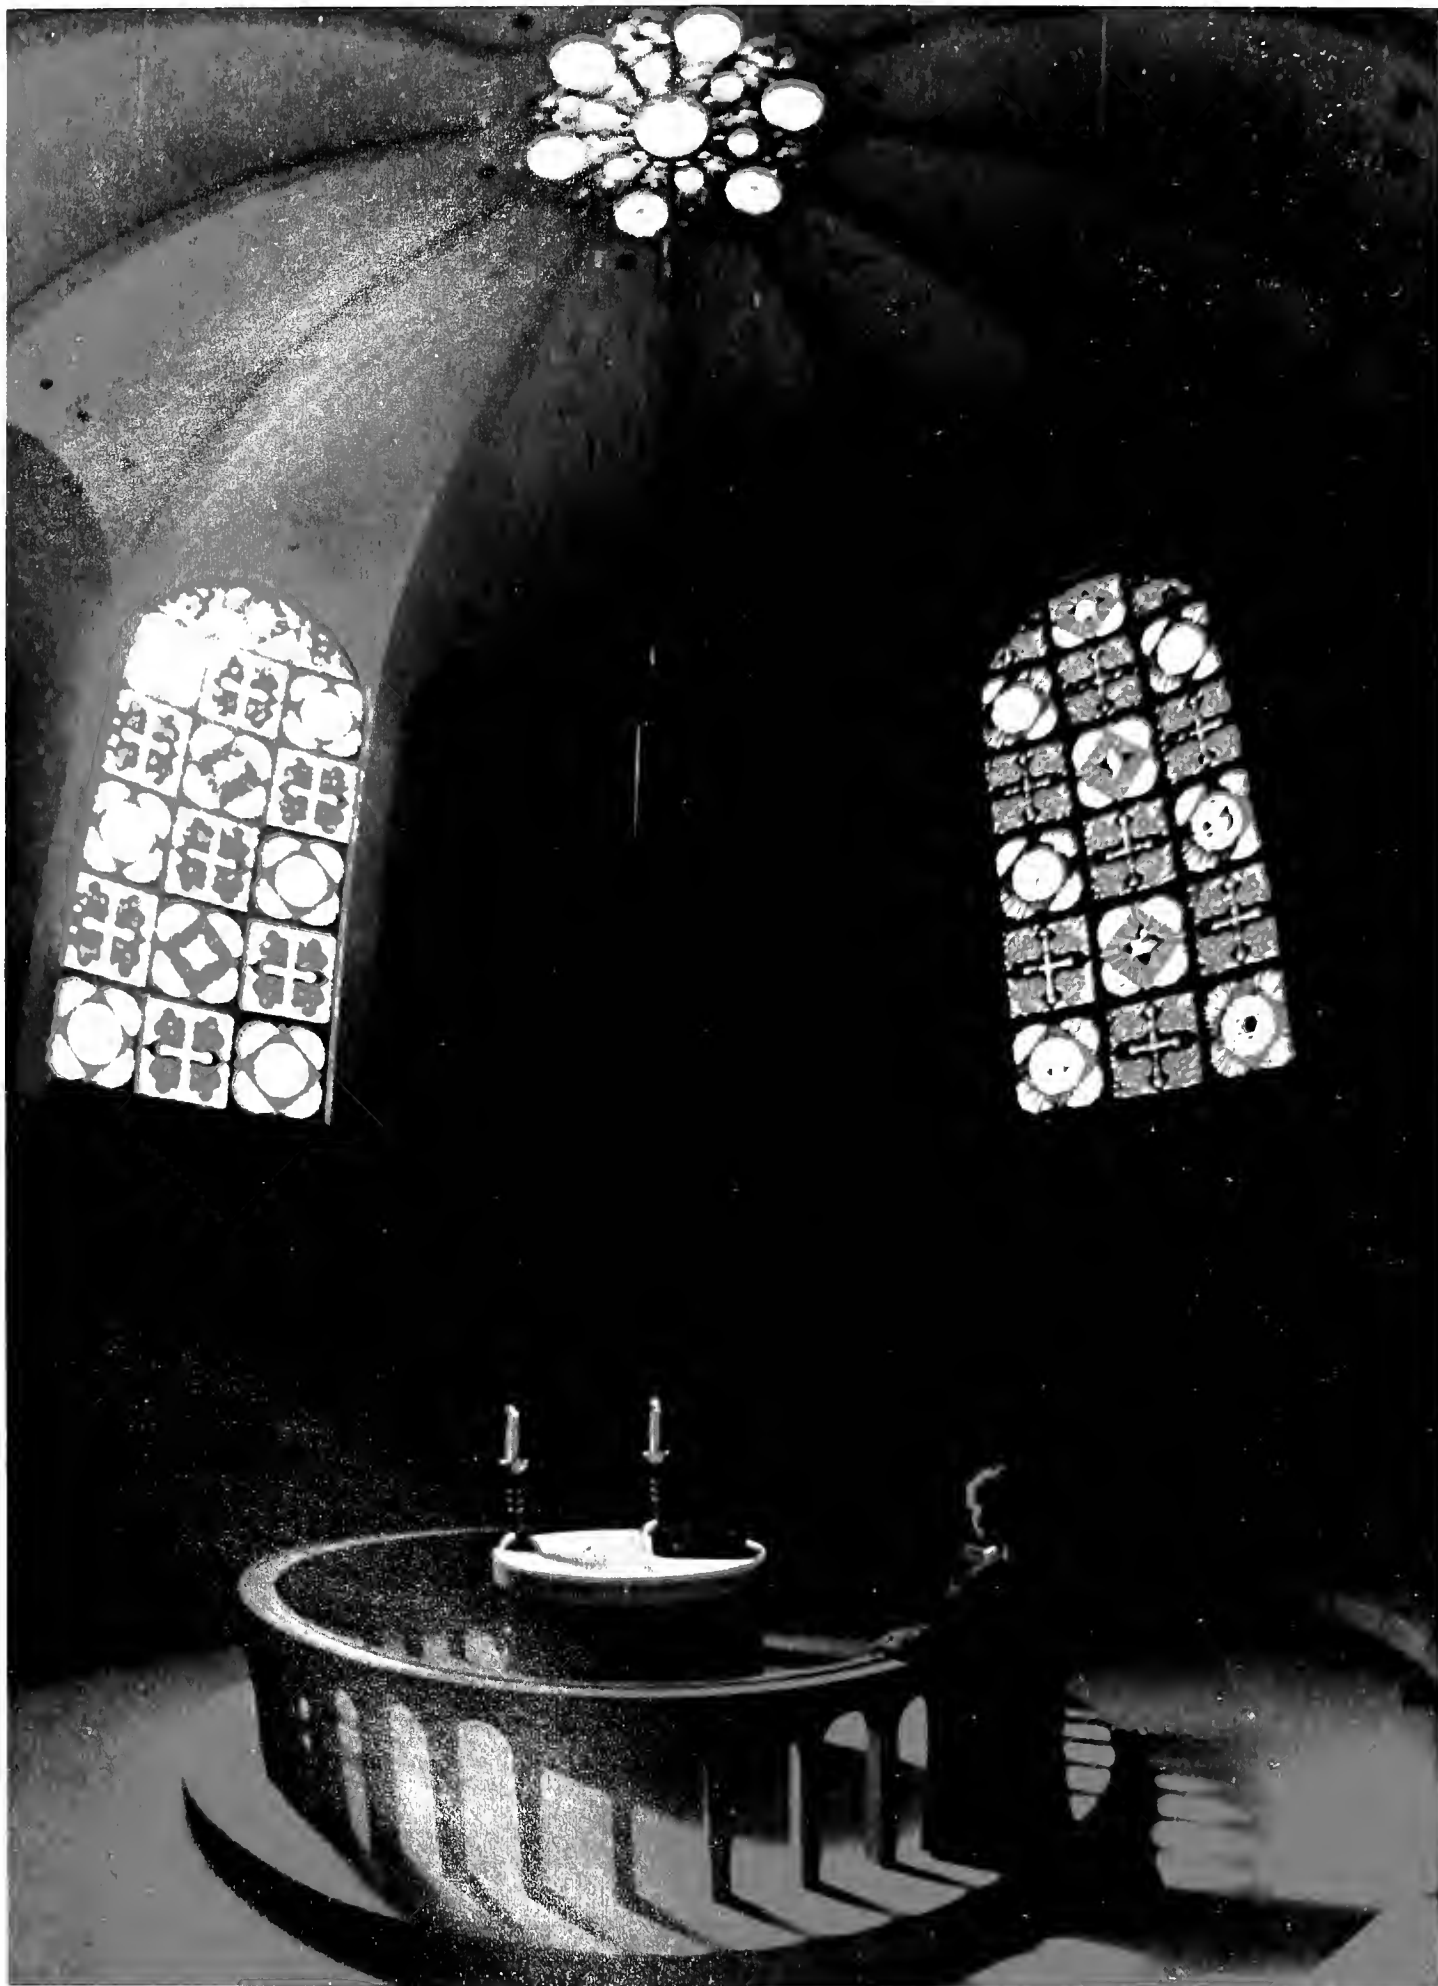

Granted, most of 'Southern's kind are not 3.9 scholars or burners of 2 a.m. oils. Some few even say, "We ought to be where there's more action and less grind," and those are promptly excluded from the select "in-crowd" of BSC students who are committed to a four-year course in anxiety because they believe in the gospel according to HMP—"to strive for intellectual refinement".

The idea of cocurricularism, the realm beyond the classroom and snack bar that Birmingham-Southern offers, may not appeal to all of the students all of the time; but surely it appeals to some once in a while.

PURSUIT: Intellectualism with the Personal Touch

BSC CHAPEL:

The House That Yeilding Built

Early in the fall God moved up the hill from McCoy and into the house that Yeilding built. The significance of that move is felt keenly by many who have vested interests in Sunday at 'Southern—especially the cafeteria and the religious groups. For a while, 'Southern has a time and a place for its own in the cafeteria on the Sabbath: the food notwithstanding, the collection plate runneth over. And hopefully, MSM, Newman, etc. have some rallying point to pick up the deadly boring pace of religion on campus.

However, even with the new chapel, the religious movement remains as cold and reluctant to move as an Alaskan glacier, attracting even less participation than Quest. Instead of folk masses, modern morality plays and the like, MSM appeals to the contemporary student with slides and discussion of THE trip to Russia. In the meantime, prayer groups form with all the enthusiasm of John Wesley, usually providing little in subsequent meetings to lure people from THE books. Regular church attendance after the freshman year is considered bordering on religious fanaticism; and some people quit completely in deference to their conscience and/or lack of sleep.

Spiritualism at 'Southern is neither typical of fundamentalism nor of agnosticism: it is truly secular, embodying more of the moral law of man than the code of God. The extent of spiritual profundity is measured far more accurately in the number of students tutoring underprivileged children on Wednesdays and Saturdays ("490 wants you") than in church attendance on Sunday—for Birmingham-Southern teaches its own brand of spiritual humanism in and out of the classroom. The intellectual approach to religion brings doubt to the surface, examines it, and gives a rational basis for belief or disbelief. It is a Shockley sermon or a Gossett lecture that cracks traditional dogma to let relevance for today's student ooze out.

Mr. Ping on Vietnam—its relevance to the campus community and, more importantly, to MSM.

Fundamentally, Birmingham-Southern remains a parochial institution; disregarding the spirit of the times by imposing moral standards that run counter to Bottemiller's Law of Free Will, that is where the College fails and prostitutes its own ideals. A liberal arts education is, they say, supposed to inspire a broadening of thought and a casting-off of doctrinism. Morality is, instead, reduced to a system of curfews and roin-coat covered knees none of which lead to a decrease in the number of beer bottles or birth-control pills. The ideal is image, not morality.

THE FUTURE: Life

After Death?

If a liberal arts education can be segmented, Social, Intellectual, and Spiritual must be the most obvious divisions; yet, ideally they balance one against the other to develop the 'Southern student as a "whole" person. Over coffee in the snack bar, the student discusses his future after graduation and finds that life in the outside world becomes almost as mystical as life after death. But men before him have taken the step from the college womb into the cold reality and worldly matrix; many have come out the better for having been exposed to music appreciation, Dr. Burnette's history seminar, and Coach Battle's philosophy of P.E.

Founder of EBSCO Industries, Elton B. Stevens, surely gleaned some humanistic cunning from his liberal arts education—and with it, the key to making people spend money his way; while Thomas Ogletree learned enough objectivity to analyze rationally "God-is-dead" religion and to become a major contemporary theologian in the South; and Jean Mandereau gained perceptive insight into every aspect of the American tradition and culture, insight which the French government felt to be valuable enough (in addition to his abilities) to appoint him Consulate General to the United States. Yes, these men are special, but they are such because their success beyond the College symbolizes the achievement of the goals of liberal arts education.

So what's it all about? Liberal arts—or are they seven deadly arts conspiring for aberration of the practical? If you are an English major, where will $C_6H_{12}O_6$ ever fit into the rime scheme of things? Answers or questions? Is this education merely exercise for a brain heading toward rigor mortis—and diffusion of knowledge, the preservative? Is there any sense in the thought that knowing where the scala vestibuli is located will lend skill to those whose father doesn't "own the business"? And is it possible that the mother will gain insight into her children's behavior from a list of constellations she once memorized and located?

"A tisket, a tasket . . ."—a 360° window for the mind to view panoramically all there is to see and hear and touch and smell and know. But where is the grand culmination of the conglomeration of Freud, Tennyson, Newton, Spinoza, Pascal, and Rembrandt? An airline stewardess juggling trays—what does she think about? "Benjamin Franklin had over 100 illegitimate children"—because the American Lit book was read and digested and regurgitated on finals one December? It is said that there is a purpose for everything under the sun . . . today—tomorrow . . . where does it all lead—this liberal arts education?

Southern students witness an admirable display of Panhellenism among sororities and fraternities during Greek Week every spring. Unofficial Olympic games with such events as the pillow fight (below right), button-sewing contest, and barrel-rolling enliven the festivities. As prologue to the entire week a torch-bearing runner from Athens—Alabama, that is—appears on the quadrangle (below left); as epilogue the Greek chorus (below extreme left) resounds in the amphitheatre.

ANNUAL OLYMPIC GAMES: A Display of Panhellenism

Whether the prettiest legs (above right) or the best brownies (above left) make May Day successful is hard to say—Lenin, roll over. More than likely it is the irresistible pleasure of seeing a professor proven to be a big drip (below).

'Southern Goes A-Maying

A pretty girl for May Queen (above), a side-show monster (below left): May Day is a lark. The campus is stripped of its academic pomp and circumstance and vibrates with a slightly raucous humor.

A PILGRIMAGE TO THE WHITE SANDS—

It is a blur ...

Houseparties—

a lost weekend? Perhaps. More like a pilgrimage to the white sands, burning-blistering, or to the vast ocean, twilight-smooth.

worthwhile? Who is to say. For some it seems to be a release for the frenzied mind that views spring quarter with a wince acquired from winter. And yet ... memories become clinched into the bitter-sweet because of too few tender moments remembered—or too many. It is a blur ... and yet ...

there is a time and place for everything under the sun.

Spring on the Hilltop is a much-cherished cliché: renewal of spirit, warmth that drives away winter's harshness, etc. Where, oh where, would 'Southern be without its linguistic love-child to provide conversation for 10 A.M. table-hoppers?

But "April is the cruellest month"—Heresy, you say? Not so. While March brings fragile crocuses, April brings a wanderlust to the mind, a fascination with the minutia of nature (below left) or with the off-key warbling of bare-foot chorus girls (above).

Spring Turns Hilltopper's Fancy to Great Outdoors

The Hilltop Singers (left) and the cry of "love-15" are part of spring at 'Southern. Students have become as enraptured by a Bob Keller forehand (below) as by Trish Langstaff's version of "A Shadow of Your Smile." Spring is a part of the mystical that somehow creates interest and enthusiasm which is nonexistent at other times.

Barbara Erickson receives the first Frances Dunn Phillips Award from the President.

QUEST:

You can read about it and forget it the next day, but seeing it and hearing it fixes it in your mind, right? This is the concept behind Quest, a cocurricular program at Birmingham-Southern, which presents artists from all phases of entertainment—religious and political lecturers, foreign films, art shows, and traveling troupes of actors, such as the Commedia Dell' Arte Players. A Quest performance is not, however, an eight-to-ten o'clock ordeal: the performers hold workshops with interested groups, lecture to morning classes, or make themselves available in the snack bar for informal discussion. Attendance is required for at least nine or ten performances a quarter, but for the most part even seniors (who became exempt from attendance this year) are willing to admit that Quest is a valuable extension of the classroom.

No Eight-To-Ten Ordeal

A COLLEGIATE PTA MEETING

Invitations go out because they seldom come or are invited unless formally—formally silverplate teapots, dark suits, hats and gloves, and saved-up lectures with a cheshire cat smile between the lines.

It is a PTA field day with IMPRESS the general theme; but because they are only here this one day (except for occasional waits on the ramp behind Hanson) and because they really have the hindsight view of the great generation gap, impressed is what they are.

The image is preserved when some P from the PTA becomes aware: with a discussion of "The Blacks" in which students define the gap scholastically, and when the professors dust off their best performances in the classroom (and it's almost as good as when Dean Weaver sits in on a "tenure-contract renewal" lecture).

All in all, it's a "go-home-and-tell-your-neighbors" tour through unreal estate, but it makes everyone feel a little more secure about Jack and Jill.

LANELL DAVIDSON CHOSEN MISS S.A.

*Lettermen Sing
for 'Southern—Again*

enaded into the auditorium at the Beauty Walk. Singer Carmelita Hassell's lovely voice was somehow lost when the microphone wasn't turned on.*

Miss Southern Accent, the highest title given to a BSC coed, is not based, as one might believe, just on the young lady's "suthen accent." Judges outside the College choose the queen of the females by activities, scholarship, and poise, not to mention beauty. Of course, the Lettermen (above) performed before a packed Munger auditorium in their usual style. To quote Dean Adams, they gave a concert with "good, clean fun" (?) For intermission, Southern's pride, Miss Alabama (alias Becky Alford, at left) entertained the masses.

WINTER ACTIVITIES

Mr. Wallace (right) made a good bet this year on Alabama's win against Auburn. Campus photographer Gil Rogers escorts the happy winner on a victory ride down the quad sidewalks. Alpha Chi Omega's Casino Party is a yearly gamble. Darning flapper costumes (far right) are six Alpha Chi lovelies, not to be mistaken for hippies just because they wear beads.

UP WITH PEOPLE!

*"We ain't great and
We ain't good ...
We just do
What we think we should ..."*

Love-power ... that's what puts a song in the heart of the Up-With-People singing group.

Hardly a warm-hearted reception from the "friendly Southern campus" ... shouts of "conservative, conservative" muttered invitations to proceed without delay to Samford for the most part, SHRUGS.

On the other hand, "Let Freedom Ring"—a right-wing patriotic telephone answering service—agreed with BSC students in part: it didn't like UWP either.

Maybe harmony will reign.

THE COLLEGE THEATRE

POWELL ANNOUNCES PRODUCTION SET FOR SPRING 1968.

"Play? Play? Who's got the play?"

"No, no. We've got the play."

"Theatre? Who has the theatre?"

"We've got the theatre and the play. We just can't produce the play right now."

"Oh. Well, how about just selling tickets to look at the theatre?"

Yes, Birmingham-Southern has a theatre, Virginia. A multi-level construction, the brainchild of Dr. Arnold Powell, it was erected like a world's fair exhibit, and a tour of the shrine was given to all visitors to the College.

Sometime in the fall or so of 1968 (or 1969) Brecht's Caucasian Chalk Circle will be presented, but only when the area's engineers are able to figure out the complex movements of the hydraulic stage lift. In the meantime, the lower (less complicated) levels of the building are seeing action with student productions and Green Room get-togethers.

HOMECOMING—A FADING “B-E-A-T”

Homecoming 1968 ...

Millions of alumni held a mile-long parade through the cafeteria where students pitched confetti torn from old Hilltop News copies and library notices. All was jubilation and anticipation for the Big Game. The stadium was filled and overflowing with crowds. The team huddled and fought to win, as B-E-A-T Beeeat MILLSAPS (or was it Sewanee?) echoed in the background.

Millions of alumni? Well, maybe a couple came. No one is sure. But there was a bonfire, pinky swear. A real bonfire, with paper decorations and everything. And there were even, yes even, cheerleaders.

Oh yes. We did win the game.

And for once, we were glad that we're finally spending some money on the athletic program.

Not all of 'Southern's activity is of the organized variety. From war demonstrations in Woodrow Wilson Park (above) to mischievous snowball wars (we always suspected that Susan Atkins was a hawk), 'Southern is at its best when it is spontaneous—chaotic?

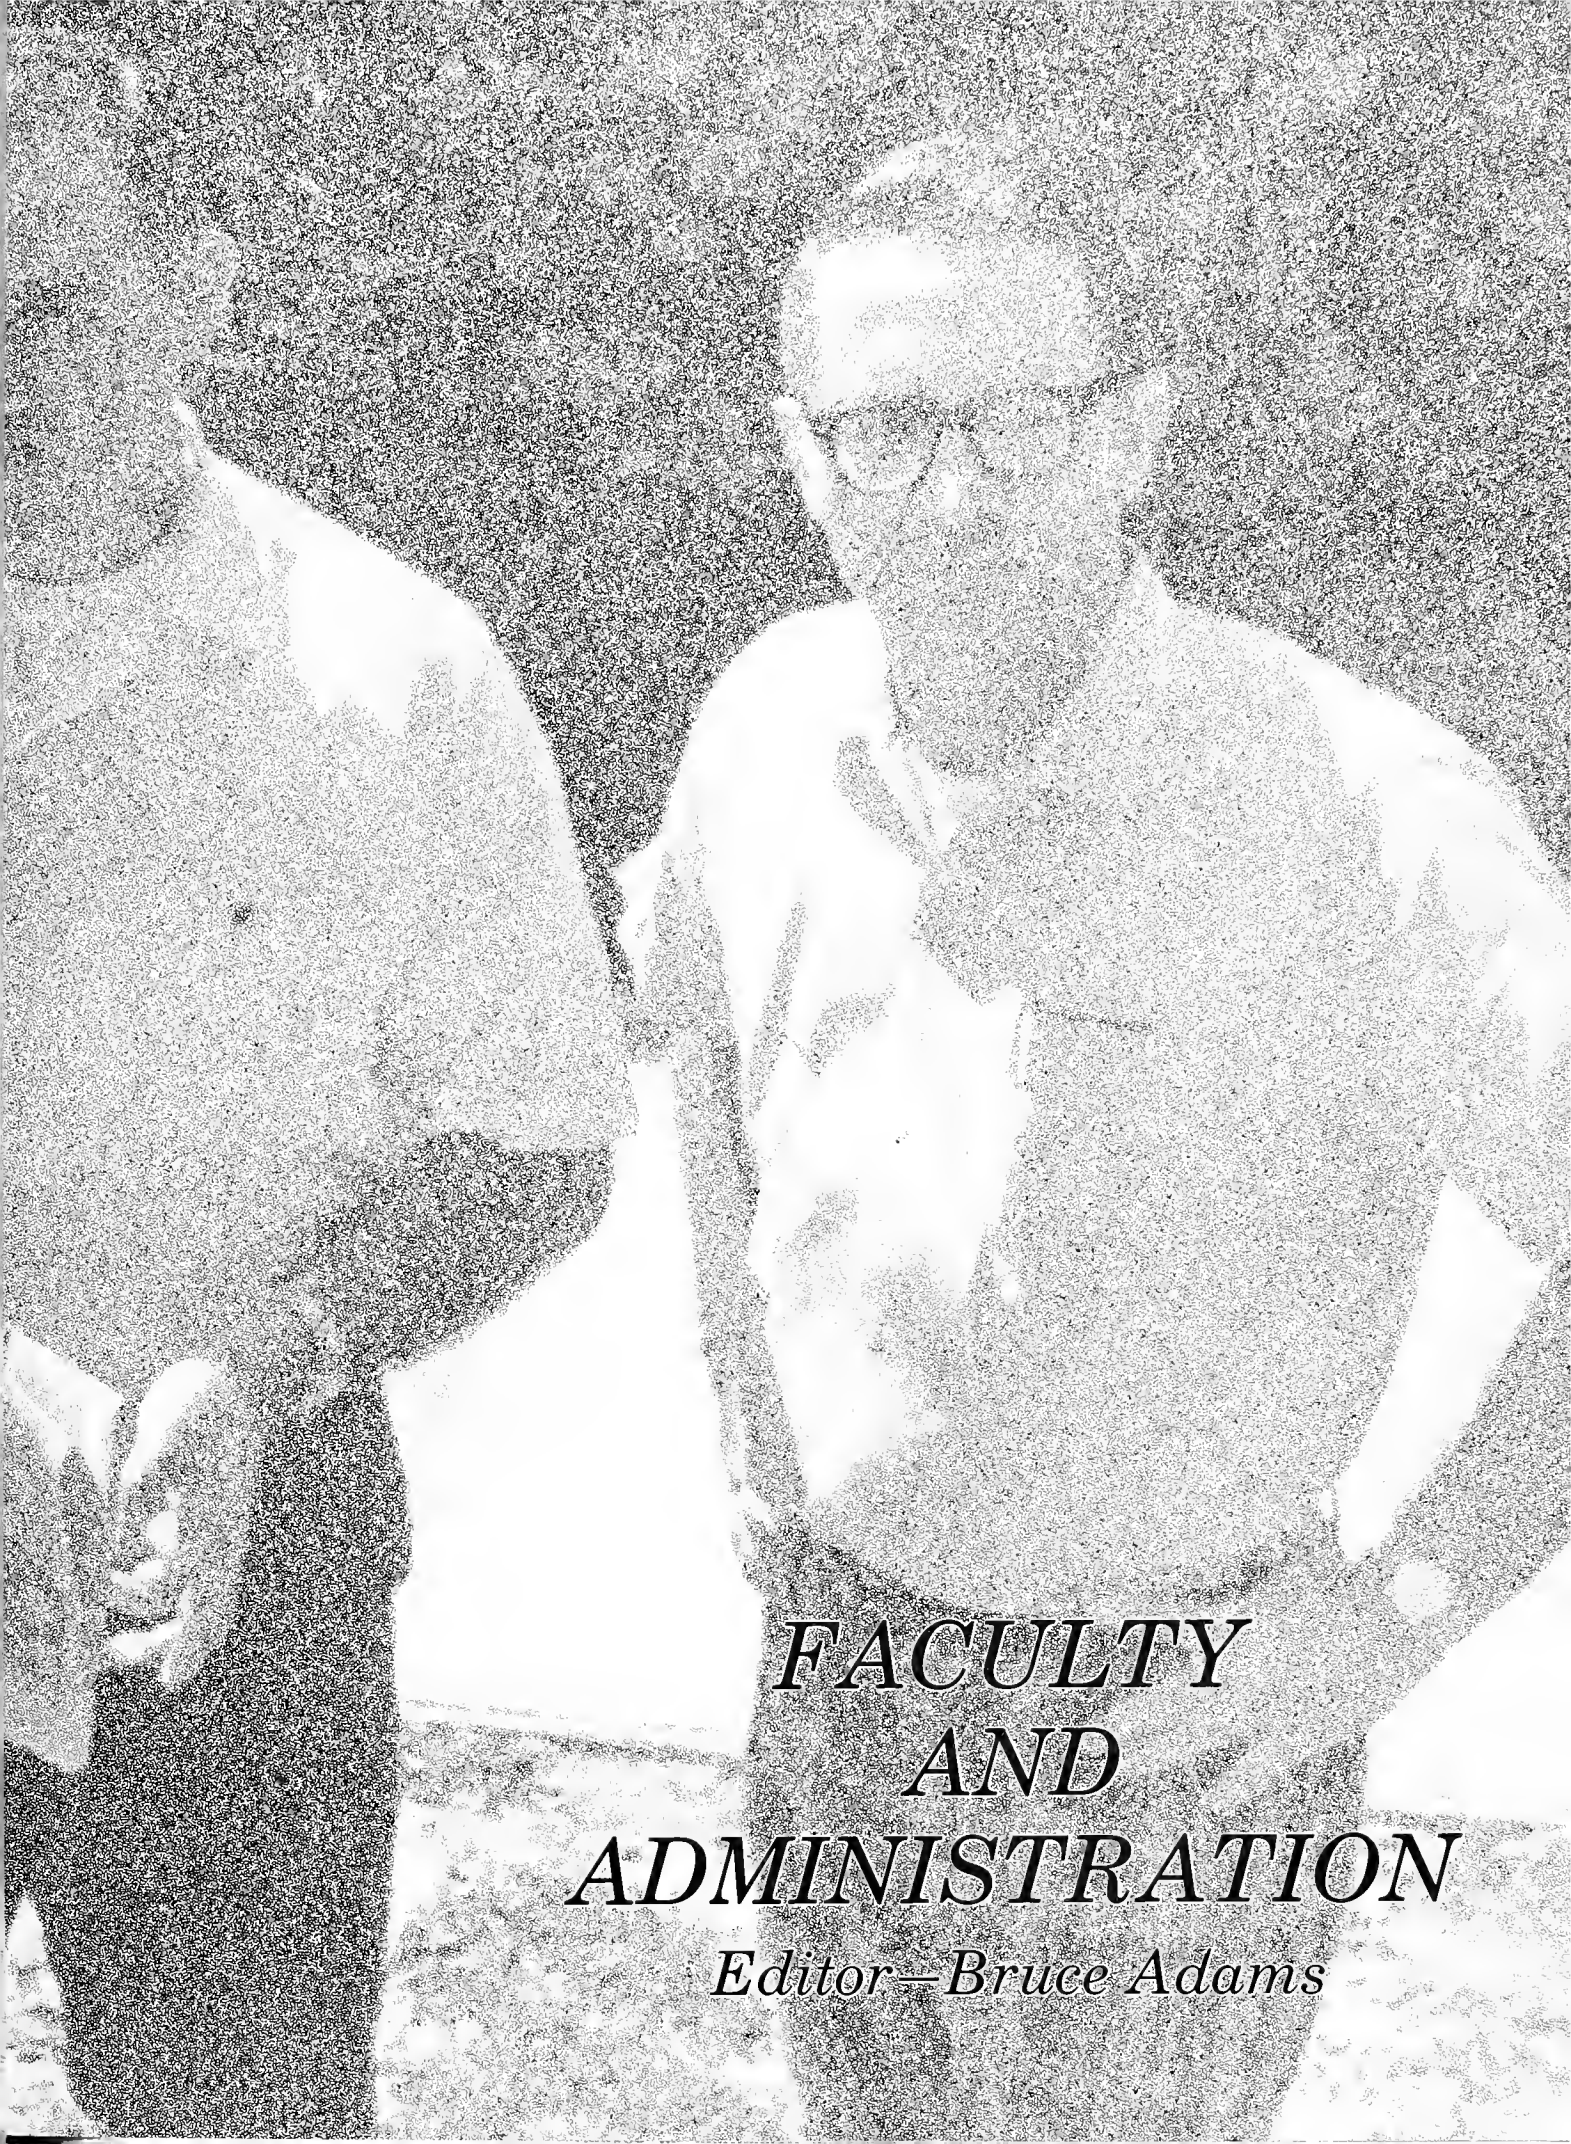

Notably 'Southern also hosts the sometimes infamous, always farcical Best Dressed Contest sponsored nationally by Glamour magazine, and locally by who-knows. Mary Sawyer, nominated by Lambda Chi Alpha, was chosen winner for wearing the loveliest threads of the Plain.

An old Southern tradition—throw the newly engaged into the pool. Accordingly, Coach Al Wassum (above) was carried in and gracefully plopped into the gym's murky depths. Some say more care should have been taken with our faculty member—but that's what he gets for marrying Miss Southern Accent.

His legacy – Enthusiasm

Phillips Resigns as BSC President

Howard Mitchell Phillips

B.S., M.A. – Wake Forest College, Ph.D. – University of Virginia, Sc.D. – Wake Forest College.

In 1967, the editorial staff of the Southern Accent dedicated its publication to the man it felt best exemplified a "new" Birmingham-Southern College. In 1968, it is revising its administrative copy because that man is gone. The why is irrelevant; the fact is irrevocable.

Staring at stolid, majestic Munger is a comfort in itself—an assurance that the institution has prevailed through six presidents and will do so tomorrow. However, the human element cannot be ignored—an inspiring, dynamic personality has left who not only built theatres and procured his burden of millions, but also had the personal magnitude to convince an entire student body of his sensitivity to their feelings.

In 1964, Howard Phillips gave a dinner for the new Student Government Association with Charles Booth as president. His somewhat stilted speech was a promise to his students that the role of the college's president would be closer to their realities. The members listened politely, never thinking he meant it. Now four years later—many forums, conferences, and drop-ins later—it is obvious that he meant it.

Even though Dr. Phillips was many things to many people, he was above all the students' promoter and chief arbitrator. His concern was with the student in relation to the campus and to the outside world.

His greatly appreciated interest in the student body is perhaps his most important legacy.

 Agee and Leach

Guy E. Snavely, elected Chancellor of Birmingham-Southern College in 1957, previously held the position of President of the College from 1921-1937 and again from 1955-1957. Snavely Student Center, focal point of recreational and service facilities, is named for him.

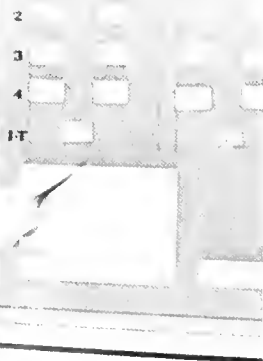

New Curriculum Initiated by Academic V.P.

Sounds roll mellifluously from his lips; the words are obviously carefully chosen and exact. The Academic Vice-President, in introducing his new curriculum to the student assembly, speaks in an eloquence reminiscent of the alma mater he wrote for West End High School some years ago; now, as then, the audience is not likely to forget his words ...

Cecil Abernethy structured the words into a modest proposal—to change the curricular structure of the College; at the same time, he tried to iron the kinks out of co-curricular Quest, another brain child. In both instances, Vice-President Abernethy has shown a relentless dedication to the ideal of intellectuality—an ideal that is, perhaps, a little far removed from the reality of student apathy toward the academic life. But, that very dedication is also to his glory: once upon a time, Alaska was called "Seward's Folly."

THE NEW CU

Dean Weaver Resigns, Returns to Teaching

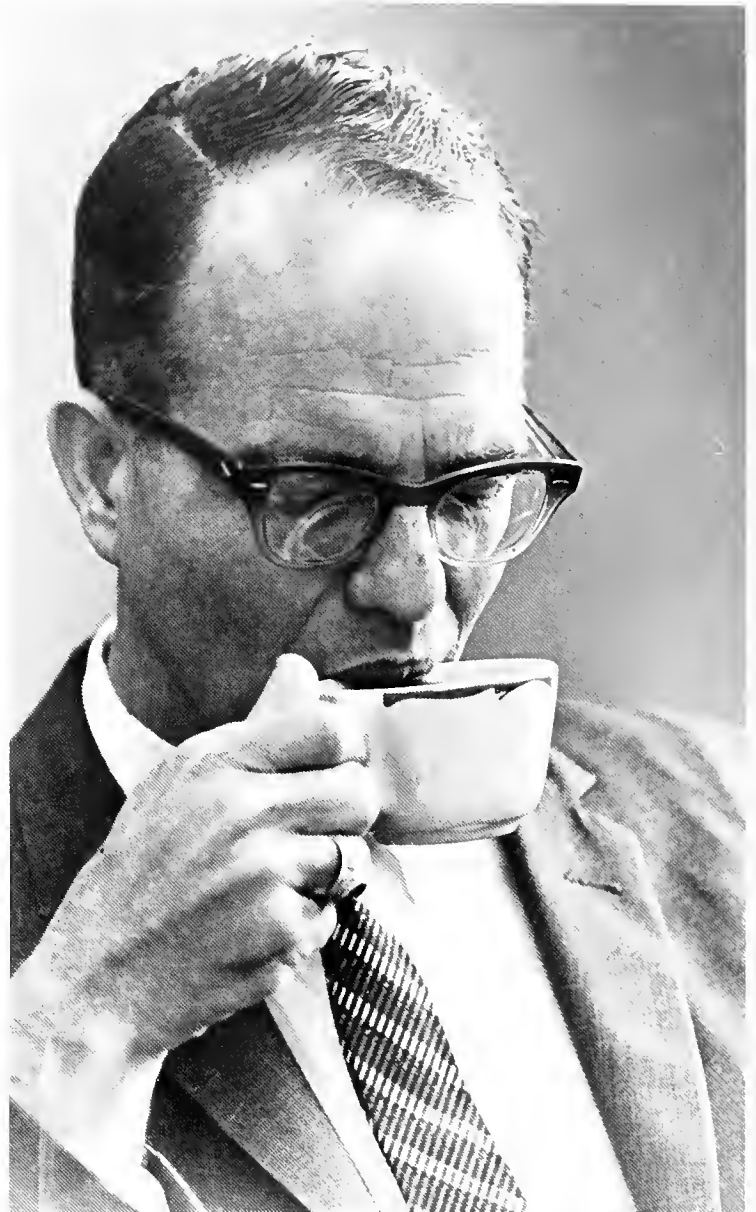

As Dean of the College, O.C. Weaver is dedicated to the tradition of academic excellence that sustains Birmingham-Southern; he is a man guided by the strictest code of self-discipline: that which he expects of himself he also expects of others. At the same time, as a measure of the man, there is room in his code for the second chance, whether it concerns lapse of conscience or a flunk-out quarter.

Perhaps more importantly, O.C. Weaver is dedicated to the learning process and to the realm of the teacher: blue-books, class discussions, provocative lectures, and the students. Almost as fitting commentary on that dedication, in January he resigned as Dean of the College to return to teaching. It is a strange, but inspiring circumstance for those who exist in the college sphere when a man, particularly an ambitious man, sees more in sitting up nights reading term papers than in reading faculty committee reports in leisure.

Dean of Students Acts as College Advisor

"Drop by and join me in a cup of coffee sometime" ends his letters and his lectures. It is all part of looking after one thousand students who have become the College's wards (according to the College). John A. Greaves, Dean of Students, tries to understand them and help them.

It's not the age, though, when collegiates seek to be protected from the realities, such as drinking or smoking pot. And, there have been problems this year that required more than a chat and a cup of coffee: students living off-campus, printing and distributing underground newspapers, attempting party raids. So the man who is on Publications Board, in charge of the police, on the Administrative Council, must handle the questions from students that arise because of those problems. But, when the answer comes, it is frequently "because the Board of Trustees has set the policy"—with regrets that no more can be done (excepting opaque containers for the frats). It must be said of John Greaves, therefore, that he is conscientious in at least attempting to find some answers.

Dean of Women Faces Housing Problem

There were complications with too many people and too little space, solved by putting three girls in a room in Hanson Women's Dorm. Even distribution of Greek and non-Greek affiliations on all halls added an element of surprise when room assignments went out in September. . . . To be sure, it wasn't an easy task for Gwen Adams, Dean of Women, to find places for all women non-commuters, especially when there were easily more pressing problems. Since then, trying to organize an effective Women's House Council that will eventually evolve into a less restricted Association of Women Students has rated top priority, with social regulations and matters of taste taken care of last spring.

It is notable that in her second year of overseeing women students, Dean Adams has instituted a major revision of the freshman advisor system along the lines of the "big sister-little sister" relationship, continuing all year. With her extensive background in guidance and counselling, the Dean has clearly chosen to direct some of her efforts to establish a consultative service on a large scale, with the philosophy of trying to catalyze the maturation process of college life.

Department of English Offers M.A.T.

The Department of English claims distinction as one of two academic disciplines at 'Southern that offers a Master of Arts in teaching. Such programs "sell" because most English majors pursue graduate study or teaching careers. Consequently, the Department dwells on conveying the concepts and theories of literature rather than carrying this further into practical application in the creative spheres of journalism and creative writing.

BSC Theater Premieres with Caucasian Chalk Circle

For years the Department of Drama and Speech taught about theatre without actually having one. Now it has classrooms especially designed for speech and debate in addition to the most uniquely constructed center for performing arts in the world. Dr. Arnold Powell continues, of course, to turn out Theatre of the Absurd productions, to write T-A plays of his own, and to teach T-A as an introduction course in theatre arts. Naturally, Caucasian Chalk Circle was the premiere offering for the opening of Arnie's Place this spring—Hindu dances, et. al. But then, showcasing Theatre of the Absurd in Birmingham is a relatively safe venture since the audiences are, for the most part, incompetent to judge the quality of production.

Modern Foreign Language Dept. Installs Language Laboratory

Keeping up with the current trends in secondary education, the Modern Foreign Language Department spent $45,000 for a modern language laboratory. Unfortunately, it has been difficult for the Department to maintain the proper incentive for students to utilize the facilities, as shown by the irregularity of attendance; and the situation has not been helped by the frequent reception of WSGN through Dial-a-program. Compensating for the lab's failures is the high interest in class activities generated by the professors—cider parties in French, Christmas carolling in German, and terrible puns in Spanish.

Classics Dept. Adds Spice to L. Arts

Usually considered one of the least practical curricula among all the disciplines (unless one happens to be a ministerial student), the Classics Department in reality adds spice to the liberal arts offering. A fun-and-Olympic games course called Mythology, slide tours of Crete, Greece, and Italy, and language taught as literature rather than just grammar attract many students to the department to pick up a second language. At the same time, the department sponsors a Near Eastern Archeological Seminar in the summer in conjunction with other colleges and universities.

Music Department Known As "Miss Alabama Country"

Finally the faculty of the Music Department has advanced to center-stage, with Nigel Coxe giving well-attended recitals and the Howards on concert tour much of the time.

Generally known as "Miss Alabama Country," the Department, not content to rest on past laurels, lured the NBC network to use the concert choir as vocal background for a special American heritage program. The Department continues, of course, to provide churches and synagogues with choir directors and ministers of music, an endeavor which seems to many to be the main task of the Music Department.

History Department Promotes Interest in National Affairs

The Department of History and Political Science usually has a complete grasp of any situation from the time of the Greek solons to Sergeant Shriver and the OEO; consequently, two books are now in progress, one by Dr. Henry Randall on Disraeli, the other by Dr. O. Lawrence Burnette on American historiography. Aside from Dr. Evelyn Wiley's classroom witticisms and Dr. Randall's 1066 and 1815 parties, the Department's major contribution within the last year to the campus community is a gradual transformation of a politically apathetic student body into one which sets up "Peace Tables" opposite military recruiters in the snack-bar and actively supports campus party-affiliated groups.

"The medium is the message" is the premise upon which the Art Department bases its demanding and rigid aesthetic criteria. As if to testify to the quality of artistic judgment of the faculty, Raymond MacMahon and Virginia Rembert (who returned Winter Quarter) serve as regular columnists for the Lively Arts section of the Birmingham News. The Department plays substantial roles in the Festival of Arts and the Birmingham Museum of Art's touring presentations.

Philosophy Department is Moving Force of Campus Ecumenicism

The Department of Philosophy and Religion has lately become known for the controversy which it has aroused. This year the Philosophy Club has sponsored a dialogue between Shockley, Wells, and Bottemiller on modern interpretations of the Christian faith; the Department also was host to Dr. Thomas Ogletree, an expert on God-is-dead theology, for a two-day lecture-discussion visit. Opening the discussion of religion and philosophy to all groups, the Department has been a moving force to ecumenicism on campus, bringing in Unitarian and less orthodox beliefs.

Psych-Sociology Dept. Views Rats, Humans Objectively

Attempting to give its majors more practical experience outside of the laboratory, the Psychology-Sociology Department has this year stressed field trips to Bryce, opinion polls, and public surveys conducted and evaluated by the students themselves. Involved at last in activities other than nonsense-syllable experiments and lectures in Psi Club, the majors have shown greater interest in specialized fields of graduate study, earning considerable scholarship money (from University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt) as a result of a Psychology-Sociology program that is oriented less toward theory.

Physical Ed Dept. Re-institutes Major Program

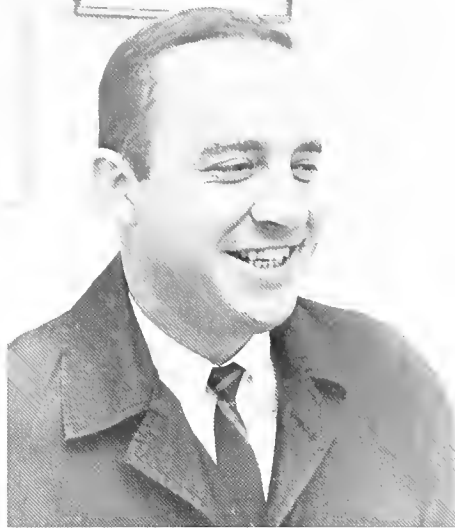

With a growing faculty and sights on a projected fieldhouse, the Physical Education Department has re-instituted the major program, increased the number of varsity sports which rate intercollegiate competition and athletic scholarships, and passed out questionnaires asking "Should students receive credit for required PE courses?" Getting the expansion program off to a fast start, the Department is more frequently being invited to schedule varsity games in "the big time," playing such colleges as the University of Alabama.

New Castle: A Learning Experience for Prospective Teachers

The Department of Education offers a curriculum designed to convey to prospective teachers the "ins and outs" of the learning process. Inside the classrooms of Ramsay Building, success in that area is a sometime thing. However, when the Department instituted a volunteer program at New Castle High School (independent of education course content) to give culturally deprived Negro children a motivational learning experience through discussion groups, the positive feedback for the BSC students was evident and unintentional. The general feeling of the pupils at New Castle, indicative of successful interpersonal relations, was typified by the following comment written about one of the BSC volunteers: "Sometimes I think (she's) almost as good as a nigger."

BA-Ec Department Discusses "Guns and Butter"

The Image: Armed with a membership card in Alpha Kappa Psi and knowledge of the GNP curve, the Business Administration-Economics major often rejects the services of the College's own placement bureau in deference to that room at the top of his father's business.

Actually, the BA-Ec Department produces much that is atypical of such disciplines; Dr. Gersting, its chairman, seeks to involve the student in thinking about the country's vital statistics—NNP, balance of trade, war economy—by participating in faculty-student coffees on pertinent topics such as Vietnam and the U.S. Economy. At the same time, Mr. Ripp forces students in Ec 201 to care about "guns and butter" by never taking "I don't know" for an answer.

The computer age, one reads, is now upon us. Keeping pace with the terrific demands of modern technology, the Math Department offers a course in computer techniques. Unfortunately, the demands upon the small faculty by other departmental disciplines have decreased the Math Department's effectiveness for the more advanced majors: few score well on the grueling GRE required for graduate study. However, math majors have been able to snare lucrative jobs with such firms as IBM, Rust Engineering, etc.

Biology Dept. Stresses Lab Research

The emphasis of course content in the Biology Department is on actual application of textbook and lecture information. For many biology majors, this policy means spending long and tedious hours in the lab. However, the departmental faculty extends the philosophy further by itself practicing what is preached. For example, Dr. Paul Bailey has for several years received a major federal grant for his study of the relationship between genes and leukemia. Other members carry on research in various fields of botany and zoology.

High Reputation Held by Chemistry Department

(Left) KENNETH MILTON GORDON, Professor of Chemistry and Chairman of the Department, B.A.—University of Illinois, Ph.D.—Northwestern University.

The Chemistry Department has long been touted as among the finest in the South because of a quality faculty with varied fields of interest (Thompson-biochemistry, Fink-organic, Calloway-physical chemistry, Gordon-organic). Accordingly, the Department emphasizes a professional training program with sights on students continuing into research and medical school. Attesting to the Department's high reputation, one student, already graduated from a top-notch Canadian school, came to Southern for a better background in chemistry because "of the recommendations of the area medical schools" to which he is applying.

Undergrad Background Excellent in Physics Department

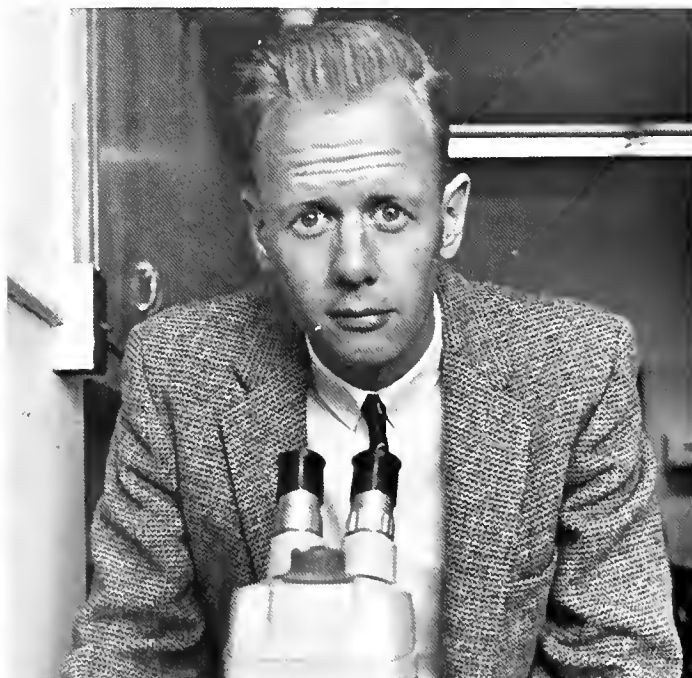

The Department of Physics in recent years has received much criticism because of the apparent easiness of the basic courses. However, physics majors receive sufficient background to allow most to be accepted in reputable graduate schools, such as Duke and Vanderbilt. Interestingly enough, the Department offers an almost equivalent number of courses as the large universities that are similarly liberal-arts oriented.

Geology Dept. Small, But Reputable

The Department of Geology, small though it may be, stresses independent research by its majors more than any other department. In the same vein, the faculty itself is often involved in geological surveys and field investigation.

Who's that? What did he do? The answers are, of course, obvious. Aren't they?

Nominated by students and/or faculty, the candidate is discussed by a small committee of faculty members representing a ghostly crosssection of the academic area. Election can possibly occur on the recommendation of only one member of the faculty committee, even if he is the only one who knows the nominee.

NO FEATHERS MUST BE RUFFLED ON THE COMMITTEE, no protégé overlooked.

It's hard to elect 21 from a class, isn't it? We are selective, aren't we? Where is the distinction? Where is the glory? Electing 21 among 10,000 must give a tremendous lift to the ego of the selection committee.

GRADUATE SCHOOL FORUM IS TERMED "A SUCCESS"

Janet Conboy, President

"Are we going to play philanthropist or benefactor this year?"

Mrs. Elise Penfield, Birmingham-Southern's new debate coach, announced at the Debate Open House Tuesday afternoon that Mortar Board had voted a two-hundred dollar scholarship for debate. — Hilltop News, October 6, 1967.

"Just think of all the people who will be grateful."

"Yes, the graduate forum was a good idea."

Wednesday evening, Mortar Board brought to the 'Southern campus a stimulating exploration into "The world beyond college." This year's Graduate School Forum, "Graduate School—A Realistic Perspective," . . . gave many students renewed interest . . . for graduate school. — Hilltop News, October 27, 1967.

"It didn't take much time away from other activities, unlike meeting every other Thursday would."

THIS GOAL REACHED, NEW GOALS SET

Wayne Lord, President.

ODK as an honor society is committed to service for the school: one of the great things about the organization is the commitment of the faculty members to seeing that a project is carried on during the year.

"Have all the faculty members, active or inactive, contributed to the patio fund?"

"What patio, sir?"

"The patio we are planning on the west side of Snavely, just like the one on the other side—the one with the sundial."

"Oh. I guess that means that we can leave the project work up to the faculty members . . . especially since the students are so busy keeping up with their 3.0's."

"Well, yes. This patio business ought to be good for at least a couple of years. Then ODK can think of another project."

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA

She has a 3.5 average. It's not because of her photographic memory, nor has she mastered the sleep-teaching technique; it's because she is a modern woman anxious to prove her worth to the world. She is conscientious of the challenge that is before her. She locks her door while she is studying so as not to be disturbed by friends who would rather talk about irrelevant things.

To many this national honorary freshman women's fraternity is not really a fraternity at all but an honor. The letters Alpha, Lambda, and Delta look very impressive by your name on the school's records, but who has time to sell doughnuts for an honorary organization.

Every now and then there is one who really is concerned with the fraternity as well as the Greek letters. Perhaps, she is the president. Almost undoubtedly, she is an independent. She is sincerely proud of the $50 award made to an Alpha Lambda Delta senior by her fraternity. She is willing to keep the alumni informed and write reports to national about her fraternity. She is earnestly concerned that of 33 freshman girls who had a good chance of being awarded membership into Alpha Lambda Delta, only 10 pulled a little harder and made it. She is Alpha Lambda Delta.

PHI ETA SIGMA RECOGNIZES AND REWARDS OUTSTANDING SCHOLARSHIP

Terry Cale, President.

A brotherhood of the intellegensia. They meet to discuss the time of the next meeting. The man first nominated for office is the only man nominated; no one knows anybody else's name. At the end of the year nothing has changed.

The emphasis is on getting in, not being in. A tea is held in winter for those who have a good chance of making it, but there is no tea for those that finally do make it. For them, there is only a key for their watch-chains (if anyone happens to have a watch-chain) and a document that declares the brilliance of the member while it hangs on his wall.

The fraternity yet must exist, if for nothing more than its name. It represents a goal that some are willing to stretch in order to grasp. It has been called the highest scholastic honor a college man can achieve. The freshman year may very well be the hardest, and a 3.5 in this year of orientation means more than brains—it means hard, earnest work.

This chapter of the national fraternity tries to stimulate the freshmen who pledge social fraternities to appreciate the academic side of college. Even though the club offers a plaque to the pledge class with the highest average in the Fall and Winter Quarters, within the honorary fraternity itself, the independents always seem to outnumber the Greeks about two to one.

ACTIVITIES COUNCIL The Vice-President of the SGA is one of its harder working members. He also is the greatest recipient of the students' complaints. His responsibility is to entertain a campus of 1100. Each year the Southern Accent Pageant, May Day and Greek Week sit on his shoulders. Each year the whole campus is on his back. His Council has to be strong to support such a heavy-laden man.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD The pacifier for administration and student body when the routine soft-hitting HTN copy suddenly becomes critical and inquisitive; half-hearted task master for an annual that might have become a perennial; a committee concentrating on a phase of communication, yet appearing to have little knowledge of what the word means.

THE ELECTIONS BOARD has had to cope with two novelties, the preferential system and the reapportionment of the SGA. Thanks to the student body's vote of confidence for the reapportionment bill, the SGA members will have a better idea of whom they represent. The preferential system still meets with criticism from the Greeks who find it harder to bloc-vote, but no one complains about the speed and efficiency of the election procedure.

HONOR COUNCIL How are they to judge? What are they to judge? The Council broods over the most guilty of its chicks, usually voting no conviction. How are they to point a finger when no one else will practice what is preached? Victims (both Council and students) of the time-honored maxim, "Never tattle or cast the first stone."

That venerable old ship. The Hilltop News, ran into troubled waters early during its annual voyage when the editor, following the example of all good seamen, cussed. He felt unable to weather the storm, and after handing over the wheel to the old salt, he cut himself off from the sinking ship and took to the sea in a life boat. The Hilltop News was floundering, and just as rats are prone to leave a sinking ship, so was the staff. Reduced to a skeleton crew, the frigate steered through to the bitter end. The going was rough, but the captain and crew were valiant and did not abandon ship until the last moment, when The Hilltop News sank, never to appear again.

A RELAPSE INTO CULTURE

GRANNY TAKES A TRIP

A creation by Julie Brumlik and Howard Cruse, bi-weekly and underground ... dragged kicking and screaming into semi-respectability by BSC rules on underground publications and by mandatory admission to Publications Board ... credited with being a major corrupting influence on campus!

Introducing many innocent readers to words and concepts heretofore considered unprintable at 'Southern ... mimeographed and typographically unpredictable ... small Keep-Granny-Greens cans pilfered by cafeteria-ites, who have better philanthropic projects!

the campus eagerly awaited the first million-dollar play which was to be presented in the building called "a monument to a man's mind"||in 'Southern's newest shrine|the theatre group goes through its ritual to the god of perfection|sacrificing to him time and energy and love||they display their emotions before all who care in six demonstrations of perfection on a split-rotate-lift stage||

Here's the deal gang—your name in lights in return for a little free labor. Orient a freshman or two, and you'll go down in posterity as a "sophomore leader." By the way there'll be a VIP on campus next week, and if any of you can get out of class ...

"How about a project of our own? ... Who can meet with me next week? ... Well, how about the following week?"

AN HONOR TO SERVE

'SOUTHERN'S VOLUNTEER

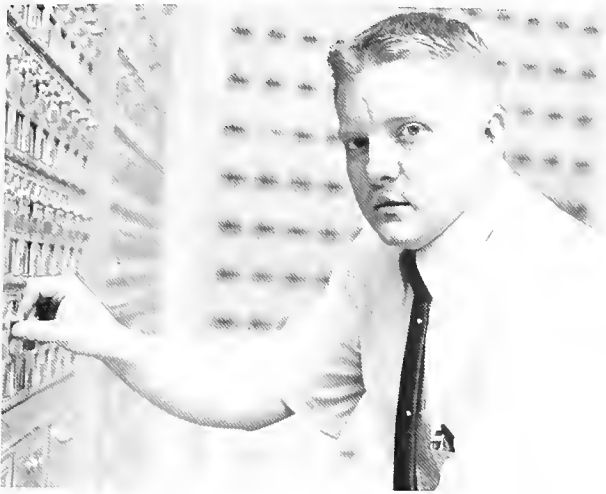

LABOR CORPS

"It is good to know that we have student organizations that can and will take the initiative to complete projects that are needed or desirable for the campus."

Compilation of the student directory, operation of concession stands at basketball games, assisting in various campus functions, and donation of an all-purpose utility counter to be permanently housed in the lobby of Snavely.

The organization is based on the assumption that students will join a service fraternity in order to serve the school ... Alpha Phi Omega had one pledge in 1968.

DEBATE TEAM RECEIVES HONORS UNDER NEW COACH

Nancy Englebert Bob Keller

As little backing from the administration as possible, even less than high school groups receive ...

Competing with regional schools in varsity competition, but no scholarships ...

*Dedication, trying and getting as far as it can

A winning season, several awards in novice debating ...

Resolved that the debate team should receive promotional consideration and financial assistance according to merit in proportion to the other "name" schools in the state with whom 'Southern compares itself academically and athletically.

CONCERT CHOIR

The 'Southern Singers are still laughing under the direction of "Papa Joe" Shriver. They laughed all night in Ashville, yet were still able to inspire the Methodists the next morning with voices that declared that each member somewhere at some time gave serious thoughts to the music he would be making. Each member came back from tour a better man; if nothing else, he knew all the words to "Gran-ada."

"Papa Joe" Shriver, the leader of the band.

WOMEN'S CHORUS

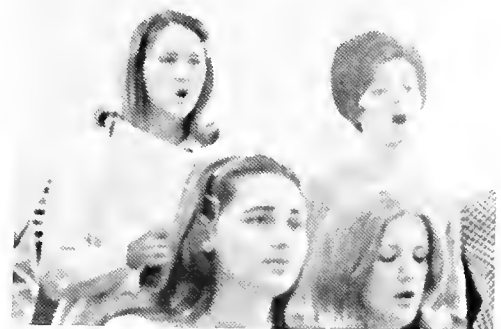

(First row) Eloine Baggett, Lynn Browder, Linda Carter, Valerie Gartseff, Mia Mia Jordan, Karey Golden, Lane Heinrich, Estelle Holman, Patsy Benton.

(Second row) Ann Boyd, Sandra Rumore, Peggy Whaley, Christy Moses, Susan Cooper, Bonnie Keller, Nancy Englebert, Elaine Nichols, Jutta Von Tieshausen, Paula Silvey, Cheryl Perkins, Pat Wood.

Their fame is not that of a hand-picked choir composed of music majors. They are here mainly just because they like to sing. They mix Bach with traditional folk ballads and display their mastery of a wide range of styles. They set their eyes toward Nashville and spent two quarters preparing for the tour, stopping only to entertain at Autumn Visit and McCoy Church.

MEN'S HOUSE COUNCIL

David Wallace, president.

Carefully chosen by the Dean policing the halls to discourage rowdiness and panty raids proctors one and all great concern over the "Principles of Living" conscientious in so far as the caring and the paycheck goes.

WOMEN'S HOUSE COUNCIL

Forced by dynamic leadership to resist the usual lethargy seeping out from between the covers of the Southern Belle's Book ... staggered efforts to set up a fair governing body for women with authority placed in the hand of the co-eds snack packs for the hungry during finals a one-eye closed approach to social regulations a shrug for boys and marijuana in Hanson. Beverly Turner (pictured at left) is the president and dynamic leader of this one-eyed, shrugging organization.

Instrumental in bringing Buzz Lukens to speak to the 'Southern student body (or representatives thereof), the Young Republicans have attempted to aid Dr. Abernethy and the Co-curricular Committee in enlightening the campus. The club worked, even sweated (God bless'em) to hold Opportunities Unlimited at 'Southern this year, but unfortunately the opportunities at 'Southern were limited.

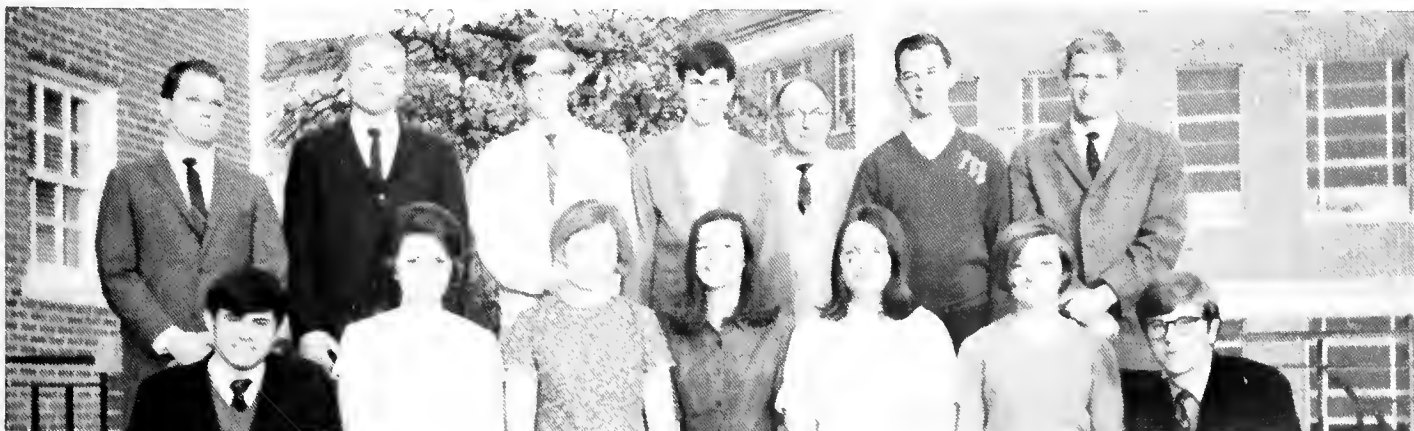

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

In true Southern style, Birmingham-Southern supports an organized group of Democrats. As their political rivals (pictured above), the Young Democrats have tried to bring a bit of the "out yonder" into the "way up here on the top of this hill." They sponsored Choice '68's appearance at 'Southern, which saw McCarthy on top by a slim margin. Votes for Wallace were greeted with gasps and "are you kidding me's."

The attempt has been made in the past to broaden the visual art experience on this campus; the attempt is still being made. The ASL scouts out and presents contemporary art films ranging from NBC's "Michelangelo" to Calder's circus show. In addition, the ASL organizes tours of the local galleries in order to keep abreast of the current innovations, styles, and thoughts about art on the local scene.

Methodist hymnals donated to the chapel by a group of Sunday-Tuesday Presbyterians ... a strong sense of ecumenicism, yet an even stronger sense of loss over the traditional day of religious relations, not considered sacred any more by a College looking outside the "congregation" for funds ... And so where have the elected gone this fine Tuesday? To the snackbar, sir.

In the vast ocean of Methodism, there rests a small island nation. Its Baptist natives are friendly, but they're definitely Baptist. They meet with similar nations at the summit meetings at Shacco to discuss the ways to satisfy the natives, keep them content with their isolation. They know of the modern world and are concerned with its absurdity. They support a missionary to speak to a world drawn so far from their island and its customs.

Communion Service Goes Anglo-Catholic: "Dress up the service for God like dressing up in your best for Sunday school." BASEBALL

"We try harder."

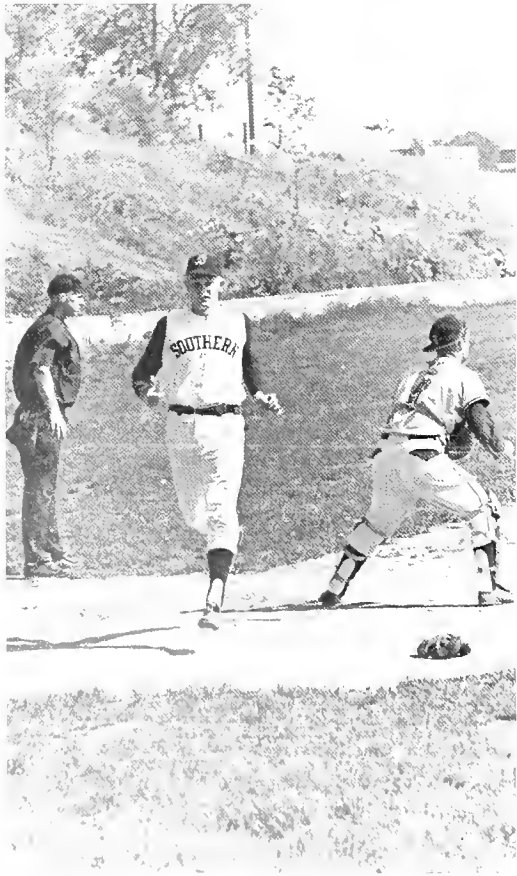

In trying to breathe some new life into the athletics program, the College brought baseball back to the Hilltop. In the opening game the Panthers bit off "a rather large chew"—the University of Alabama—and promptly went on to an 0-10 season in 1967.

There was optimism, however, among the players. And Coach Pickel remarked, "We got the team started, and that was the main thing. ... all of the players stuck it out and wanted to play. They tried to win every ballgame. They never quit."

"You gotta have heart ..."

Getting things rolling in a winning way is a luxury afforded only the big school with the big budget; the rest take it on the chin and hustle—like Coach Wassum's Panthers in their second season.

Hustle ... that was the program during the beginning weeks of Spring practice for the '68 season. Whether the "team that lives together" policy and the new curfew pay off will become evident somewhere between the first game with the University of Ala. and the last with Huntingdon.

In between? One player, still winded from preseason conditioning, said it like this ... "I'm not running my head off now to end up with a 0-16 season."

The 1968 tennis team, having to deal with Emory, Vandy, and Bama, came out with a reasonable 8-7 record under the coaching of Al Wassum. Bill Burch and Neal Templeton led the squad in polishing off teams of supposedly equal ability. At least, the playing of tough competition added not only spice to the game, but also to the projection that one season the Panthers could beat SEC netters.

Pickel's Panthers: Guts, Pride, and

"GIVE'M HELL"

"I have been proud of this bunch of seniors for four years, and I'm — if possible — more proud of them now," said the Panther coach Harold Pickel of the men who carried the burden for the sometimes disappointing, sometimes fantastic cagers during the 1968 season.

"If they had ever wanted to give up they would have had every reason to after the first few games They are just not that kind ... never have been."

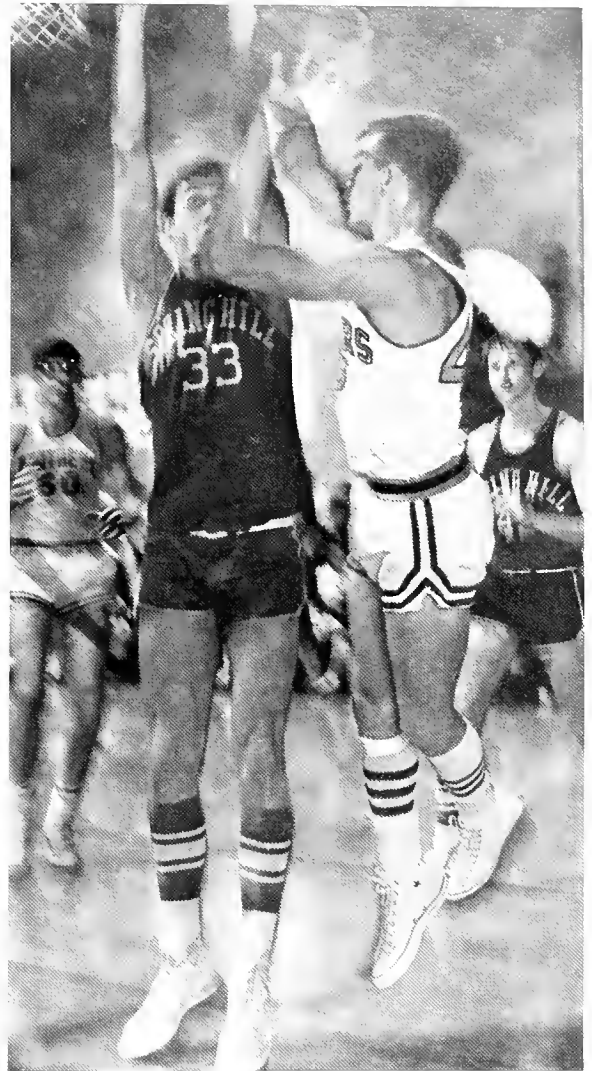

In the first game of the season, the Panthers rode to Cullman to battle St. Bernard and came home with a 105-104 heart-breaker; then another game, this time with Huntingdon — another loss, 80-73. And so it went until, on December 9, the Panthers won against St. Bernard, a sweet, sweet victory.

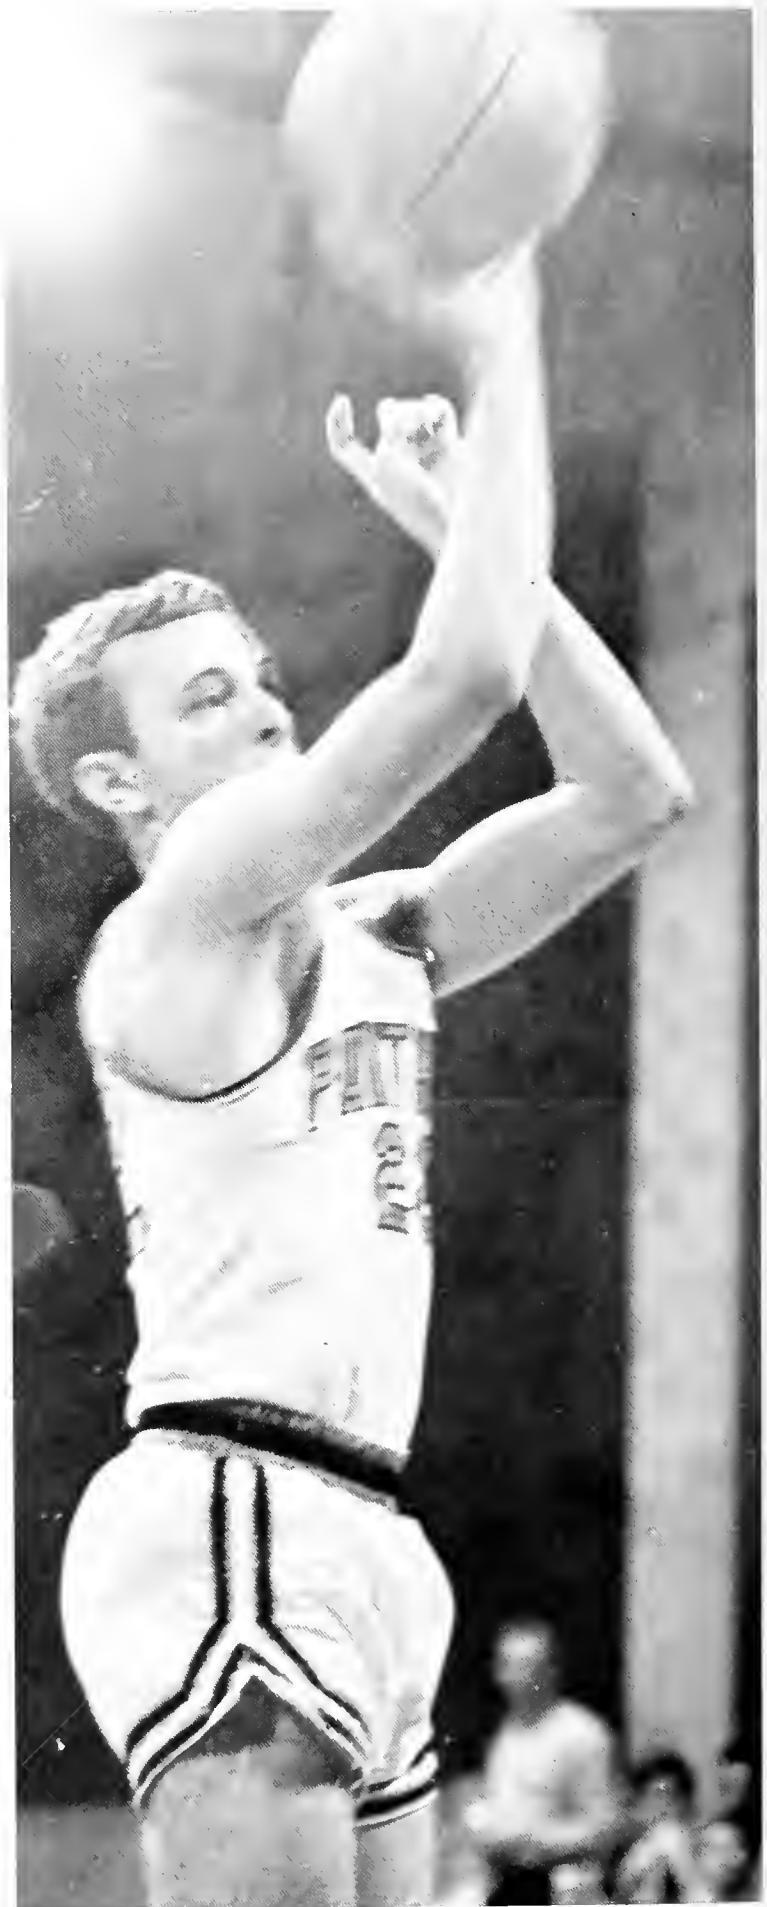

Then, two defeats in the Mercer Tourney. But after those and a couple of others, especially the game with the University of Alabama, the tall 'Southerners began winning on guts and pride. They pounced on Georgia State and laid waste to the University of the South. And so on, for the record books.

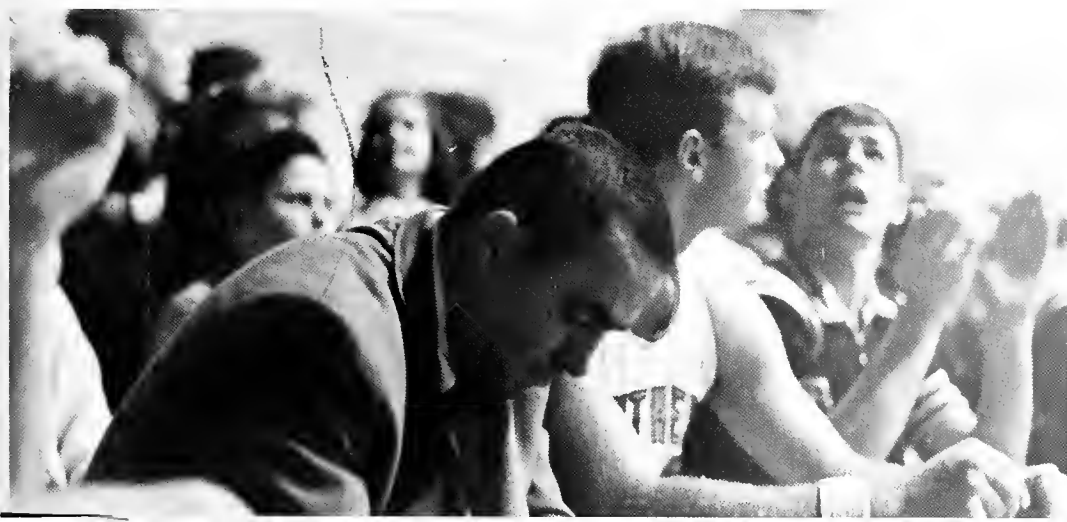

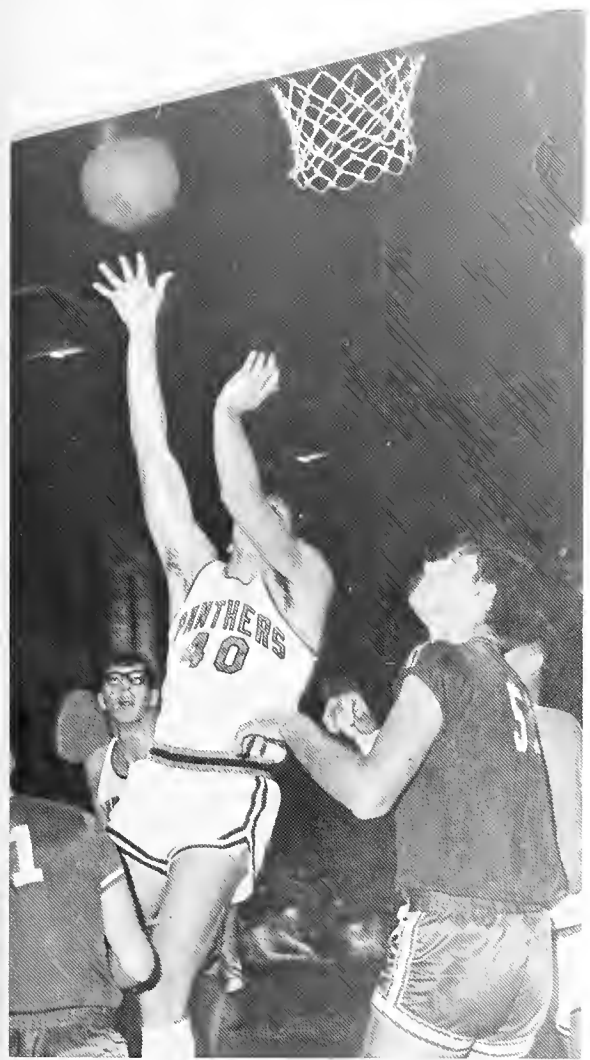

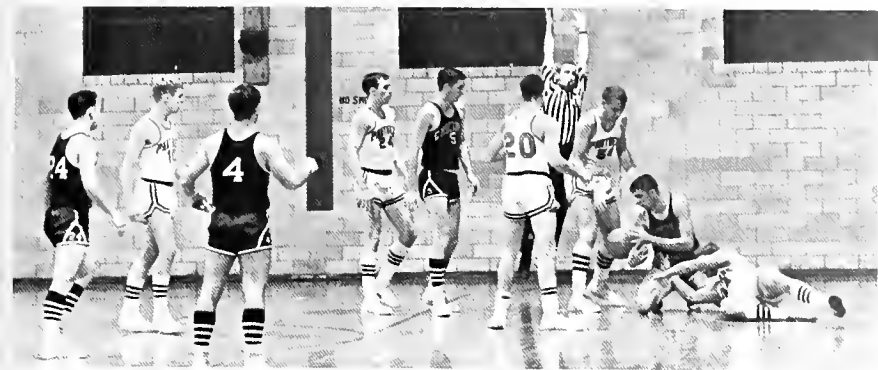

In the end, they only affirmed the wisdom of recruiting "athletes with brains" — who might not always win against the apes, but their conduct and attitude have to be admired.

Alpha Tau Omega polished off an undefeated season with a come-from-behind victory over the Independents to ice away the '67-'68 intramural championship.

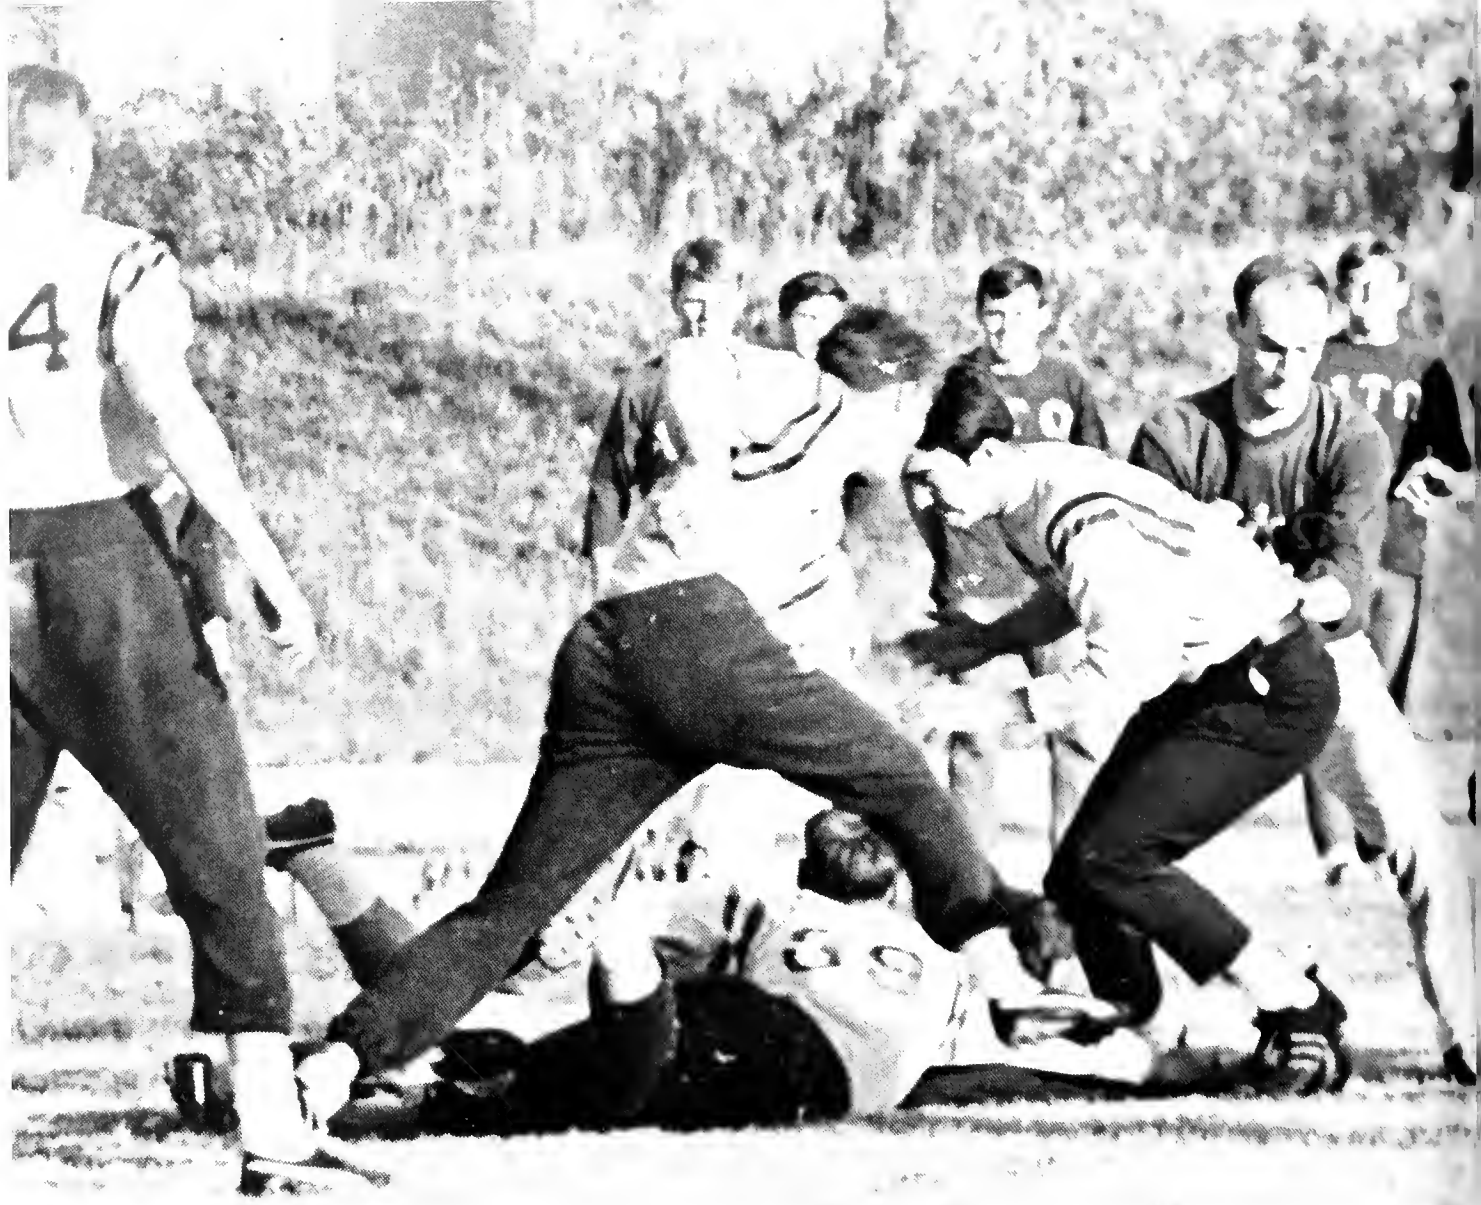

The Taus spotted an 8-0 first inning lead and surged back with 16 runs in the last three innings.

The SAE's pulled away from some close calls to sew up the second spot, losing only to the ATO's.

But credit where credit is due—the faculty, paced on from the mound by Athletic Director Bill Battle, surprised the league by fighting to the third-place slot. A formidable opponent may be around for a few years in the old-timers who remember how.

Kappa Alpha took the fourth spot, followed in order by LXA, the Independents, TX, and PiKA.

Taus Win Them All

Probably one of the most exciting football seasons in a long time, this year the gridiron was well lined with enthusiastic spectators (sometimes a bit too enthusiastic). The big game of the season was the Tau-Sig match which was complete with decorated goal posts and shakers of the appropriate colors. It was almost like being back in high school.

Classic Rivalry Renewed in Football: Taus and Sigs in Playoff Game

Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon locked horns twice this year. Each team losing only one game during the season, the Taus to the Independents and the Sigs to the ATO's, these classic rivals were rematched in a playoff game to determine who would take the football trophy home. With a strong determination, the Tau's again ran ahead of the Sigs with a brilliant offense led by Jack Wainwright and Ric Sorrenson.

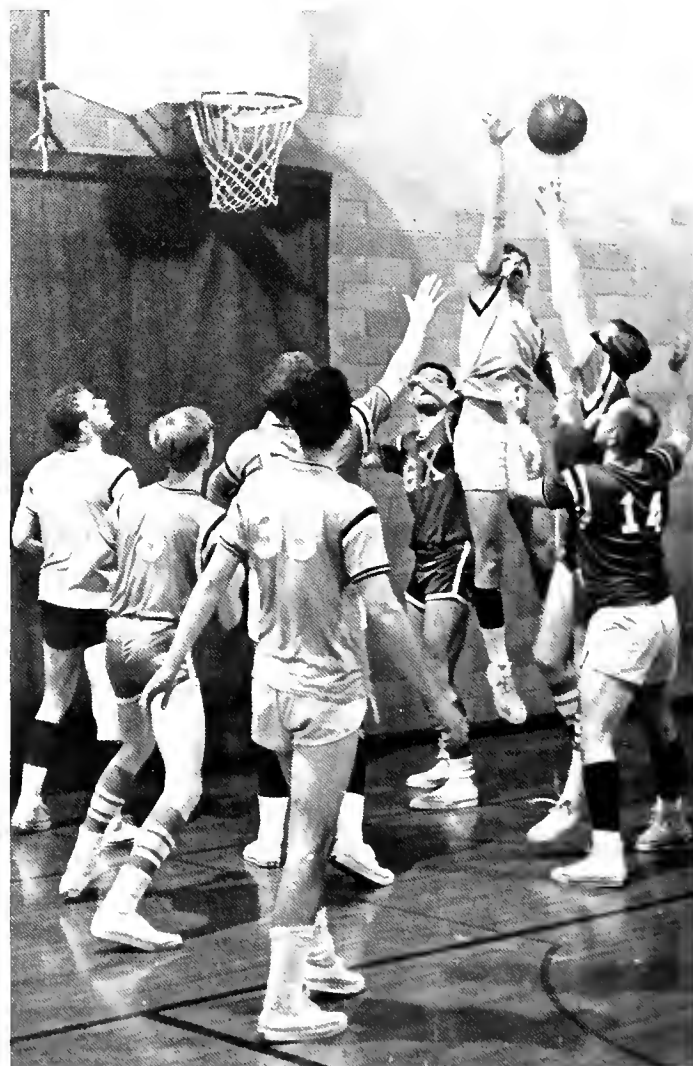

Lion-hearted SAE's Undefeated in Basketball Season

The Lionsmen of Sigma Alpha Epsilon swept away all opponents in the regular season and polished off the Independent A team in the championship game (74 to 59), to capture the intramural basketball championship.

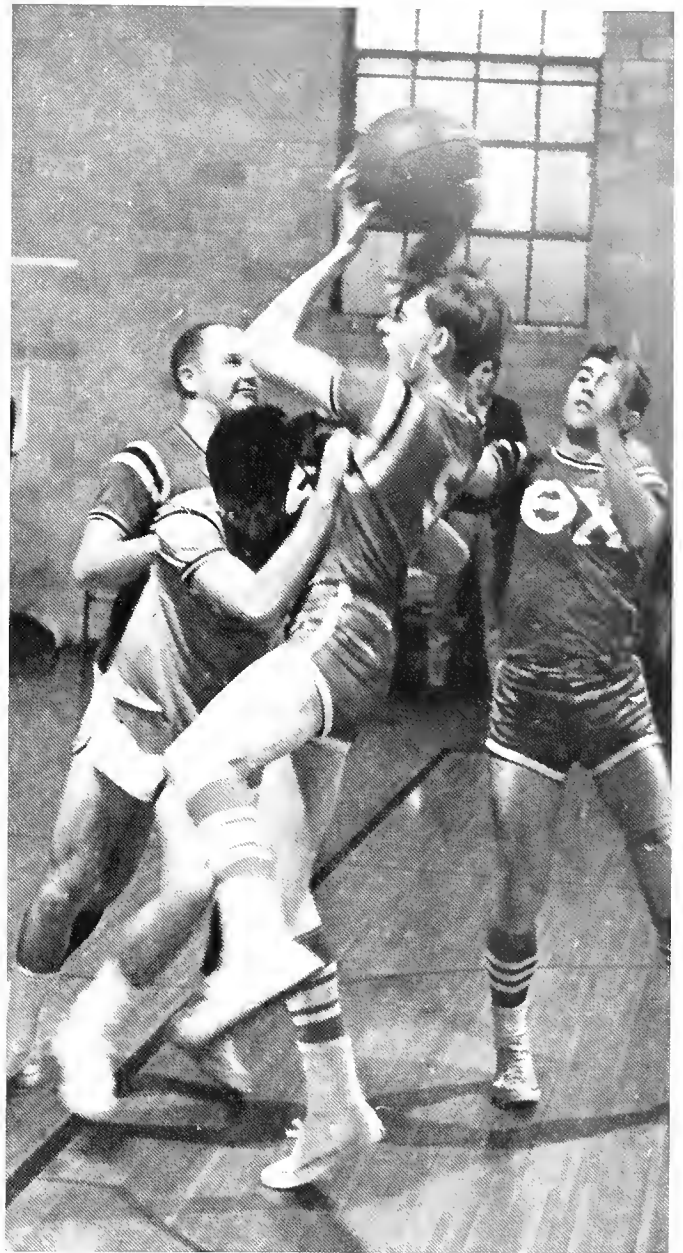

Alpha Tau Omega defeated Theta Chi in the consolation game, coming from behind for a 66 to 64, one-basket victory, setting the Tau's in the third berth.

The SAE A team was ready for all takers after the successful season. The Phi Gamma Deltas of Sewanee, undefeated in their own intramural league for three years running, challenged the Southern winners to a post-season game. The SAE's fought over the Fiji height advantage but could come only as close as six points (60 to 54) when the final buzzer sounded.

The construction industry thinks of Vulcan as crushed aggregates – stone, slag, sand and gravel.

To other industries, Vulcan Materials means other essential products. Divisions of Vulcan fill the needs of the industrial and agricultural chemical, metallics and related markets in addition to the construction industry. Vulcan Materials serves the nation's basic industries.

From ACIPCO... A Promise For Progress

For more than fifty years, the name Acipco has been synonymous with quality cast iron pipe and fittings. To homes, to offices, factories, mills and plants throughout America, pipe manufactured by the American Cast Iron Pipe Company conducts liquids and gases vital to human well-being and industrial progress. Few other manufactured products serve so many basic needs so well . . . or contribute, through their service, so much to the progress of our nation.

Today, in addition to cast iron pipe, the American Cast Iron Pipe Company produces centrifugally spun steel tubing. Already, products manufactured from these versatile steel cylinders serve virtually every modern industry. Hundreds of new applications are being developed.

Acipco's program of aggressive research, engineering development, and expansion of production facilities promises an even greater contribution of service to America tomorrow.

America's largest individual cast iron pipe foundry — now serving the nation and the world from Birmingham.
